Explore.....Our scenic, natural landscapes;
 Experience.....Our fresh air and clear lakes;
 Enjoy.....Our friendly, relaxed lifestyles.

Let us entice you with the new 2005-2006 Visitor Guide, its outdoor recreation images and ideas for things to do. The guide exposes our four seasons as the "Destination of Choice" for the whole family. Valued is the diversity of activities and accommodations, treasured is our Aboriginal and Gold Rush History. Proudly we have been designated as the "Hand Crafted Log Home Capital of North America".

Whether you are looking for a place to explore for an afternoon, mapping out an itinerary for your vacation or deciding to make 100 Mile House and area your next home, the guide will offer a vast array of community connections and holiday activity options. Good fortune would have it that you are here on business, pleasure, visiting friends and relatives, so we hope you will take time to stop at the Visitor Info Centre, conveniently located on the west side of Highway 97, right on the 100 Mile Marsh, in 100 Mile House. Our staff is very knowledgeable and happy to match your needs to tourism products and services, so that your visit with us will be filled with cherished, lasting memories.

to the South Cariboo!

You will be delighted with what you discover, whether it's your first visit or your second home. The South Cariboo is a region of variety and change. We are pleased to share our great fortune in living here. If you love fresh air and room to breathe, come holiday in the South Cariboo and choose your own experience in outdoor fun and country living at its best.

Our diverse landscapes are always changing in colour and mood, offering endless opportunities to relax and explore. Do you prefer the architecture of forests or the open swales of grassland and meadow? Explore both - from mountain peaks to valley lakes, the natural surroundings provide sweeping viewscapes or secluded hideaways for your personal or family retreat. Be prepared to spot wildlife - naturalists will find the flora and fauna enthralling throughout the year. Different ecosystems (and sometimes our doorsteps) shelter a wide variety of species. It is not uncommon to see deer, moose, and black bear; more rarely, you may glimpse a cougar, lynx, bobcat, or wolf. Look overhead at soaring eagles, listen to the lullaby of the loon, marvel at the brilliance of a bluebird, and keep your camera ready.

From nature appreciation to cultural events to extreme sports, a wide array of activities can be enjoyed by all ages and tastes. Not only a preferred destination for many freshwater anglers, the South Cariboo also offers top quality cowboy holidays, nature tours, and motorized adventures. Discover our treasures on foot, by horseback, by mountain bike, or by all terrain vehicle. Remember to bring your swimsuit, since you will no doubt visit one of our many lakes. Most are best visited by canoe or kayak, but many larger lakes are perfect for your personal watercraft or power boat. If you want to experience the magic of winter, the South Cariboo has fantastic conditions whether you snowshoe, ski cross-country or downhill, snowmobile, or dogsled. Of course, you can always join us ice-fishing or skating on a local pond! While you are here, visit a historical site, natural wonder, remote camping spot, or point of fantastic view - or, if you have time to spare, all of the above.

After a fun day of activity, you can expect to find food and bed to suit your taste or comfort level. Tired of the city's frenzied pace, noise and impersonality? Looking for some country R & R, where you can nestle into a log cabin pondering the flames of the fireplace, or drink fresh-brewed coffee on your front deck looking out over picture-perfect scenery? From rustic cabins to luxury resorts, you have your choice.

Whether you desire to return home with a full recollection of adventures or prefer to sit back admiring a lake-side view, the South Cariboo has some deep valley of the great Fraser River to the west. From the Thompson River valley, the plateau stretches out far to the north. Most South Cariboo communities are found within the Bridge Creek, Bonaparte and San José watersheds. In fact, 100 Mile House was originally named Bridge Creek. Many local community names have interesting origins from the early pioneer days.

Homesteads and settlements emerged along the Gold Rush Trail. Construction of the Cariboo Waggon Road in the early 1860s prompted the building of stopping houses along its length. Early visitors recognized the South Cariboo as a land of potential. From open grasslands to timbered highlands, crisscrossed and spotted with the most valuable resource of all - water. Supply posts and stopping houses sprung up to support the growing number of travellers to the goldfields just north. Even now, goldpanning is a hobby and past-time, yielding small amounts of pay dirt, gems and other geological curiosities. By employs 30 percent of the workforce, and supports an internationally-recognized, handcrafted log home construction industry. Practiced by early pioneers and carried on into the present-day, ranching and agriculture have become a tradition in this region. As you explore this country by horseback, don't be surprised if you see cowboys rounding up their herds and strays. However, you may consider yourself lucky to catch a glimpse of wild horses that venture through from time to time. Many local ranches and farms produce organic vegetables and meat that can be bought at one of the Farmers' Markets in different communities. As well, there is the opportunity to see and visit non-traditional livestock such as sheep, buffalo, llamas, miniature horses, alpacas, or emus.

of the best facilities in the province. A medley of holiday experiences await, but be aware - you may just have to return for a week or for a lifetime.

Delighted to meet you

We are blessed with diversity here in the South Cariboo. The variety of natural settings is a result of the geological history. This region, once covered by glaciers, is located on the rolling Fraser Plateau between the heights of the Shuswap Highlands in the east and the 1865, transportation through the South Cariboo was improved by stagelines plying the new route. Even then, passers-through returned to make the South Cariboo a permanent home. Alongside the indigenous people, early pioneers made a living from plentiful natural resources, products and services they traded and provided to travellers.

As in the past, our main industries include forestry, tourism, and agriculture. One look at our surroundings lets you know that forestry plays a large part in our local economy. In fact, forestry

Our friends and neighbours come from a variety of backgrounds, but we all share a common trait of friendliness. We have a history of accommodating travellers to our area, and the tradition continues until this day. Our beautiful natural landscapes cannot help but attract visitors for not only the one-of-a-kind vistas and atmosphere, but also the incredible array of recreational opportunities throughout the whole year.

Clinton to Lac La Hache

Before the Cariboo and Barkerville became famous for its gold, only a handful of ranchers settled in the area. The first cattle arrived in the Canim Lake area in the 1820's.

In 1858 when the discovery of gold on the Fraser attracted many miners, the Fraser was followed its length by foot and pack animals. The first route passed our area at Dog Creek. After the discovery of a rich goldfield in Barkerville, hundreds of additional prospecand Harrison Lake, up to Lillooet, and on over Pavilion Mountain to the Cariboo and Barkerville. Lillooet was Mile 0 and from there each roadhouse established was called a Mile House: 59 Mile House, 70 Mile House, 83 Mile House, 100 Mile House, 108 Mile House, 114 Mile House to 150 Mile House. These are original mile houses which have retained their names to this day.

About the same time, in 1863, another waggon road was built to join up the

BX Stage Cariboo Waggon Road near 100 Mile House

Yale as mile 0. From Clinton up the road the mile houses retained their names from Lillooet.

In 100 Mile the first cattle was driven in 1859 by Joe Palmer, followed in 1861 by the Jeffries brothers. Although it was Thomas Miller who first preempted the land on which in 1861 the first guest house was built, the Bridge Creek House was at the time better tors reached the Cariboo in 1862. A short route suitable for waggons in and out of the goldfields was needed. So a route was found via Harrison River

Cariboo. This time to pass through Cache Creek, up from the Fraser and Thompson Rivers from Yale. Other road houses were built and the mile counted from known as “Jeffries store”. The earliest advertisement was published in a “list of roadhouse accommodations for travellers” in Victoria’s Colonist of 21 February 1862.

A lot of stories and mysteries entwined around these stations from Polard’s Cornish Ranch in Clinton to James Griffin’s 150 Mile House. Well known is the murder mystery of the 108 Hotel, where Agnus MacVee, her husband and her son in law were rumoured to have murdered at least 58 miners between 1875 and 1885.

In 1905 Benjamin Howard McNeil constructed the family home at 105 Mile. The home, later needing to be moved for highway construction, was kindly donated by the family and restored on the present site at the 108 Ranch. This Heritage Site is situated on land donated to the society by Block Brothers Industries.

Lone Butte was once the Cariboo’s largest town and much bigger than 100 Mile House. With the Lone Butte Hotel, stores, hospital, school, Post Office, mills and stockyards, it was the hub of the South Cariboo. The rail line played a big part in this. The community’s wooden water tower is one of the last existing structures of its kind in BC. The tower was built in 1920 to serve the steam locomotives of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

One of the last remaining buildings in Lac La Hache is the historical Felker Homestead from 1884 at 118 Mile. The family graveyard, a part of the ranch, is nearby.

100 Mile House

Home to the 1986 Expo Legacy community project ... the World's Largest Cross Country Skis. These impressive skis and poles tower over 36 feet high and weigh over 1500 pounds. In 1987, our community was honoured to dedicate them to Rick Hansen on his historic "Man In Motion World Tour".

100 Mile House is the pulse of the South Cariboo for business and commerce and the approximately 20,000 "South Cariboosters". An enthusiastic downtown core offers quaint charm and all the conveniences to meet your shopping needs and desires. Now that you have worked up an appetite and want a meal on the run or an evening of fine dining to please your palate... blessed are we with a wide array of International Cuisine and downhome family cooking.

■ Unique to light aircraft pilots is our 100 Mile Airstrip at an elevation of 3051 feet. Conveniently landing within a block of the downtown core, you and your passengers can stroll a short ways for a selection of accommodations and restaurants. Rental vehicles can be arranged and the members of the local flying club are accessible through the staff at the Visitor Info Centre right beside the strip for your fueling needs.

■ Our hidden jewel, Centennial Park, is just a short two blocks east of Highway 97. A great place for families to let the kids run and have a picnic. A well groomed creek-side trail to Bridge Creek Waterfalls makes accessibility a refreshing treat for the physically challenged and wheelchairs. Parking suited to large RVs May thru October.

■ The Visitor Info Centre is blessed to reside on the eight hectare 100 Mile Marsh and Ducks Unlimited Wildlife Sanctuary. The meandering perimeter trail entices world wide birding interests and South Cariboo birding check lists are available in the office.

■ A great wilderness experience is awaiting you an hour west of 100 Mile House. Plan your 1-2 day canoe trip through 12 back country lakes in Moose Valley Provincial Park. Photo opportunities abound including bear, moose, sandhill cranes, bald eagles, beaver, and many other water fowl. 4x4 access is recommended and the very basics of camping are offered.

■ The community Demonstration Forest road access is 1.6 km south of town. This recreational trail system provides interpretive signage about our logging history and practices, use of recreational lands, wildlife management practices along with flora and fauna unique to our geography. It is used by hikers, bikers, snowmobilers and represents home for the 100 Mile Nordics Ski Club. The ever famous Cariboo Marathon takes place here.

108 Mile Ranch

The 108 Mile Ranch, which is situated 15 km north of 100 Mile House was once a cattle ranch and is now an independent community. It offers a variety of recreational activities for all seasons. The two lakes on the ranch have day beaches for summer fun and a 9.2 km perimeter trail that connects with the area's 150 kilometre trail network.

■ The South Cariboo Airport runs parallel to Highway 97 at an elevation of 3127 feet with a lit runway 4877 feet long. Suitable to multi-engine aircraft and conveniently located within walking distance to golf, various accommodations, activities and spa.

■ The 108 Heritage Site and Museum, located at the north entrance to the 108 Mile Ranch community on Highway 97, is open from May to September. The site consists of buildings original to the site and built between 1863 and 1915. A section of the original Cariboo Waggon Road passes through the site. The large Clydesdale Barn, built in 1908, still stands where the prospectors once unhitched and stabled their horses for the night. It is a wonderful site for a picnic.

■ Spring, summer, and fall the well signed multi-purpose trails offer opportunity for easy walking or a challenge for the most experienced hikers. During the winter they transform into some of the world's finest cross-country ski trails.

■ Numerous quality accommodations, a shopping centre, and gas station offer visitors many products and services.

Plan a winter vacation around the Jack Gawthorn Memorial Dog Sled Races, the Cariboo Marathon or during the summer participate in the Canada Day Celebrations and learn more of our local history with a guided tour at the 108 Heritage Site.

Lac La Hache

The "Longest Town in the Cariboo" provides most services, a selection of lake-side resorts, B&Bs, and motels. Eateries provide international cuisine and home cooked meals in unique settings.

■ Lac La Hache Provincial Park offers a convenient opportunity for camping or swimming at the day beach.

■ Lac La Hache residents boast that their lake produces trout weighing up to 30 pounds. The kokanee in this lake average 1 to 1.5 pounds.

■ The lakeshore has beautiful segments suitable for recreational activity in and out of the water. Water sports include swimming, boating, and jetskiing.

■ The Mt. Timothy Ski Area with a new three-seat chair lift provides downhill skiing for all levels of skiers. Accommodations available close by.

Canim Lake

Thirty eight kilometres north-east of 100 Mile House, the Canim Lake area attracts visitors all year round. During the summer months conditions on and around the lake are usually excellent for fishing, hiking, and water sports including water skiing, parasailing, and jet boat touring. The winter season offers visitors a wonderland ideal for snowmobiling, dogsledding, back country Nordic skiing, snowshoeing, ice fishing, and skating.

■ 37 km long Canim Lake offers excellent family fishing for kokanee and rainbow trout. From rustic to deluxe, the resorts offer cabins that suit your needs. Full service RV sites and camping are also available. Guided boat and float plane tours provide unique opportunities.

■ Take a half day to drive the circle tour to Canim and Mahood Falls. Walk the well groomed trail or experience a refreshing hike to the bottom of the falls.

70 Mile House

The quaint business community of 70 Mile House is the starting point for the Green Lake and Watch Lake Circle Tour.

■ Green Lake was given its name because of its crystal clear brilliant green water. Its surroundings are ideal for a family vacation: two seasonal day beaches, three provincial park campgrounds, restaurants, full service resorts, B&Bs, lakeside cabins and historic guest ranches.

■ Green Lake is an all season destination ever popular in the winter for ice fishing, snowmobiling, and back country snowshoeing.

■ Watch Lake is a popular spot for great fishing! Birdwatchers will enjoy seeing golden eagles, ospreys, loons and a variety of ducks.

The Interlakes Area/Hwy 24

The "Fishing Highway", Highway 24, connects Highway 97 to Highway 5. This route is a scenic drive, which takes you through the Interlakes community area where you will find resorts, B&Bs, and guest ranches operated by friendly hosts. A lake a day for your lifetime... that is what the true fly fishers say! Troll the larger lakes, row or belly boat for the challenge or sheer pleasure.

■ Fawn Lake is a small pristine lake. Its crystal clear green water, rich with trout, is ideal for fly fishing because it has extensive shallow areas.

■ Bridge Lake offers the most diverse fishing opportunities. This lake has consistently produced kokanee over 4 pounds and rainbow trout over 5 pounds.

■ Sheridan Lake is the largest lake in the Interlakes area. Although large in surface area, it has a relatively shallow average depth of 23 feet, which makes the lake very productive. Rainbow trout can grow up to 13 pounds here. The most detailed and signed trail system for ATVs and snowmobiles exists here.

Clinton

Clinton, founded in the 1860's as a roadhouse at the junction of the original Gold Rush Trail from Lillooet and the Cariboo Waggon Road from Yale, was called 47 Mile (47 miles from Lillooet). In 1863 it was renamed by Queen Victoria in honour of the Colonial Secretary, Lord Henry Clinton.

Ranching became Clinton's main industry after the gold rush. In the 1950's it was surpassed by forestry. Well worth stopping to stroll the unique shops, antique stores, Reg Conn Park and the historical churches of the town.

■ Guest ranches throughout Clinton's rural surroundings offer visitors a chance to experience a working cattle ranch or enjoy a trail ride.

Camping

PROVINCIAL PARKS & CAMPGROUNDS

The diversity of our landscape and recognition of such by our governments past and present have made provincial parks available for outdoor recreation, however parks exist to protect habitat and wildlife. Help to protect the beautiful nature of the South Cariboo Provincial Parks by following the camping ethics and regulations. Pick up a copy of the guide at the South Cariboo Visitor Info Centre.

- Big Bar Lake
- Bridge Lake
- Downing
- Flat Lakes
- Green Lake
- Lac La Hache
- Mahood Lake
- Marble Mountain Range
- Moose Valley
- Painted Chasm
- Schoolhouse

USER MAINTAINED FOREST RECREATION SITES

There are dozens of forest recreation sites in the South Cariboo, so if you choose to, you can really enjoy the beauty of untouched nature. Forest recreation sites are no longer maintained by our Ministry and firewood is not supplied.

To retain the high quality of our wilderness experiences, we all must accept responsibility for minimizing our impact. The goal of every wilderness visitor should be to leave no trace, so that others who come after are not aware that anyone was there before them.

NATURAL WONDERS
of the SOUTH CARIBOO!

Our region has its own unique landforms to amaze and inspire rock hounds, photographers, naturalists and the earth scientists alike. The land is the complex product of continental collisions, sea floor sediment accumulations, deep-seated intrusions, heat/pressure changes, uplifts, and incisive action of glaciers and streams. The whole face of the region was altered when the ice melted about 10,000 to 12,000 years ago. The complex processes, and particularly the glaciations produced hundreds (some say thousands) of various sized lakes.

The region is partially rimmed by mountains, and the volcanic activity has been generous in providing geological curiosities. Both the Begbie Summit and Lone Butte are sites of volcanic necks, probably the product of larger and softer volcano slopes being shaved away by glaciers. Take some time to hike up the roadside trails for a panoramic view.

Even though the South Cariboo is somewhat flat in appearance, a side tour to Chasm Provincial Park offers the marvel of just how massive a glacial meltwater channel can be.

Winding gravel roads lead to the west and the Fraser River ranchlands and Churn Creek Park. A prominent wall of basalt columns is well displayed at Dog Creek. Novice back road travellers and/or RVs should use caution and get current route advice at the Visitor Info Centre as there are few services and no cell phone coverage.

The South Cariboo has some fossils, but is not known for paleontology. The dinosaur age happened here, but left few durable fossil signs. They are somewhat hard to find as they are often buried under the more abundant lava flows.

Visitors to the South Cariboo are well advised to “come and stay a spell” to fully enjoy this beautiful and diverse area. Driving northward on the ribbon of Highway 97 from historic Clinton to sweeping Lac La Hache, our guests might be oblivious to all the South Cariboo has to offer. What is the remedy? Just follow a few simple suggestions: Get off of the highway; Get out of the car; Take your time; and Try something new.

Every member of the family, no matter their age, can find something to their liking. The ingredients for a wonderful summer adventure:

- Warm and sunny summer days.
- Lakes of every size and description.
- Varied landscape and scenic locations.
- Abundant birds and wildlife for the observant traveller.
- Space to spread your wings with no crowding or rushing.

Our lakes have become a less-than-well-kept secret to numerous summer escapees from the Vancouver-Lower Mainland areas. All summer the lakes’ warm waters offer a peaceful and more relaxing alternative to busier destinations. There is plenty of space for canoeists, water skiers, parasailers and swimmers to find their own spots where they can enjoy their activities and absorb the warmth of the summer sun. The water is so clear and inviting that you might not want to come out!

Anglers know of the endless variety of lakes and selection of rivers that offer a fruitful catch. Add to the variety of water bodies, the different game fish species (rainbow, kokanee, burbot, char, brook trout) and you have an endless guarantee of unique fishing experiences.

Our famous multi-purpose trail system, which offers such renowned cross-country skiing around the South Cariboo, becomes a rich opportunity for a rambling woodland hike or endless hours of mountain biking. Hiking trails offer gentle and picturesque strolls around Sepa and 108 Lakes, Bridge Creek Falls, and at the twin Canim-Mahood Falls. How about something more challenging? Then you may want to head west from Clinton for dramatic hiking in the Marble Range. Keep your eyes open! Wherever you go in the South Cariboo you may see an abundance of wildlife such as deer, moose, coyotes, fox, eagles, or bears.

If scenery is your passion, a camera or paintbrush your instrument, then the South Cariboo has something to inspire you. Mountain lovers will be well advised to make Clinton the centre of operations as the Marble Mountains offer vistas above the timberline, and dramatic cliffs and hoodoos loom over the rugged Fraser River Canyon. West of 100 Mile House, at the junction of the Fraser and the Chilcotin Rivers, are the grasslands of the Junction Sheep Range and the home of the largest herd of California bighorn sheep on the continent. Birding begins downtown in 100 Mile House where Violet-green Swallows nest, Yellow-headed Blackbirds and Red-winged Blackbirds fly via the central migration route and offer an orchestra of sweet bird song on the 100 Mile Marsh and Ducks Unlimited Sanctuary. Almost every lake has resident loons, ducks, and other water birds. Who wouldn't want to get the most of your South Cariboo summer adventure? Get off the highway. Get out of your car. Come, stay a spell!

GET YOUR RANCH EXPERIENCES RIGHT HERE!

"Guest Ranch Capital of Canada" without a doubt that's us! From the unique riding experiences of the "Bed, Bale and Breakfast" where you and your horse are welcomed to stay and ride the South Cariboo back country to the very deluxe accommodations where one can relax, pamper yourself at a spa and enjoy a gourmet meal after a memorable day on the trail. For the urban cowboy still thrashing around in some of us, why not take the opportunity to ride on a true working ranch? With well over 25 various guest ranches offering their own picturesque good fortune; some geared to children, others to the very experienced, and some lakeside properties suited to the whole family's vacation needs. Cowboy poetry, rodeos and a good barn dance are offered throughout the area and make for a well rounded "cowboy adventure"!

Winter in the South Cariboo...

Spending a winter holiday in British Columbia can be an experience you will never forget. Chances are that wherever in the world you came from, you already knew that beautiful BC has the reputation of being a vacation destination par excellence throughout the year. But you chose to sample the thrills of the winter season. Nowhere else in the province is there a greater opportunity to choose from a long list of winter activities than in the Cariboo Region.

It is no accident that residents from other countries, known for their winter-sport opportunities, come to the South Cariboo to participate in and enjoy ours. Examples are the Cariboo Marathon and the BC championship for cross-country skiing. Both events are held on the well groomed trails just south of the village of 100 Mile House; usually during the month of February. Participants come from all over BC and from foreign countries such as the U.S., Norway, Germany and Switzerland. You do not have to be a pro to participate in the Marathon. In fact, you may set your own goal, be that 50, 30, 20 or 10 kilometres.

If the competitive aspect does not appeal to you, there are ample opportunities for great skiing, including back-country skiing, on equally well groomed and track set trails nearby. The 100 Mile House trail system is extensive, while the trails around the 108 Mile Ranch measure 150 km. The 108 (one-O-eight), as it is referred to by the locals, is located approximately 15 km from 100 Mile House.

If your choice is down-hill skiing, you will have to travel a little further to Mount Timothy, north of Lac la Hache and some 35 km from 100 Mile House. You will find a ski hill that has an 850 foot drop. Both, learners of all ages and advanced skiers, are welcome. A snowboard park has been built to accommodate practitioners of this newly minted Olympic sport. A ride on a new three-seat chairlift takes skiers and snowboarders to a total of 32 ski runs. Bring your own equipment or rent it at the lodge. Not everyone comes to ski. How about trying your hand at ice-fishing?

Numerous lakes offer opportunities to fish through the ice. It is not uncommon to see little huts or shacks on the ice; pulled on to the lake by die-hard fishers intend on jigging in comfort. Challenge yourself and take part in one of the many ice fishing derbies, hosted by community groups.

For more winter fun you may wish to try any of the many different ways to travel through a winter wonderland. Options abound. If you are in the mood to have a tranquil experience of sliding through a frozen forest, where you may surprise a rabbit, pheasant, deer or moose, try snowshoeing. If on the other hand tranquility is far from your mind, while speed and the inevitable noise accompanying it, excite you, you may race through field and forest on a snowmobile. Rentals are available through out the area. Do not venture out on your own. Go with a buddy; for safety sake!

A more unique mode of travelling through the snow is travel by dogteam. You may engage an experienced musher or you can be your own musher, in charge of a friendly team of huskies. Dogsled racing is a competitive sport. Each January the Jack Gawthorn Memorial Dog sled race is run at the 108 Ranch. Did you know that the word “mush” is a phonetic derivation from the French word “marche”, which was the command used by the coureurs de bois, the early settlers in Eastern Canada, who used dog teams? Of increasing popularity is ski-joring, harnessed skiers being pulled by dogs.

And finally there are sleigh rides offered by the many resorts in the area to entertain their winter guests. In a crisp breeze at night a ride on a sleigh can be an exhilarating experience. Comfort is guaranteed, because the wagons are filled with hay and woolen blankets. If you are lucky, there is a campfire at the end of the ride while drinks of hot chocolate are passed around.

Art and Culture

The geographic features of the South Cariboo region of BC include vast stretches of rolling hills, alternating with forested areas. This renders the land ideal for keeping cattle. Thus the landscape is dotted with numerous cattle-ranches of both small and gigantic size, which have contributed to a life-style and culture that are typical of the area. This fact and the beauty of the natural environment have put a stamp on cultural and artistic expression.

It has also encouraged many artists to move here to build their studios and permanent homes. The village of 100 Mile House and surrounding areas constitute the major population centre of the region. Here you will find shops that carry the works produced by artists and artisans living locally and in the region.

The region's culture also incorporates aspects of aboriginal life-styles and the traditions and cultural manifestations of First Nations. Enjoy a 20 minute drive north-east of 100 Mile House to the Canim Lake First Nations' Cultural Centre. A visit there may be a rewarding experience and offers an opportunity to view and or purchase items designed and created by the Secwepemc First Nations' artists. Each summer, dancers in breathtakingly beautiful traditional regalia, the time-honoured powwow is hosted by the Canim Lake First Nations and the District of 100 Mile House.

Artistic output in the region includes both the visual and the performing arts.

Many visual artists use as subject matter the natural scenery and wildlife and their interpretations of the cowboy culture in the region. Others are inspired to express themselves in abstract images or sculptures. Painters use oil, acrylic or watercolour to generate the settings and moods represented in their work. 3D carvers and sculptors produce their works in stone, wood or metal. 100 Mile House also has an active group of weavers and spinners, who produce unique creations.

All the various works can be found in local shops and in galleries throughout the larger Cariboo Region. Of particular interest are bronze sculptures replicating scenes and activities of cowboy life. Not to be forgotten are the books describing the history of ranching as well as contemporary life in the Cariboo.

In addition to the many pictures you will be tempted to take with your own camera, you may want to browse through an abundance of photographic material produced by professional photographers.

See the Calendar of Events for performing arts presentations, which are scheduled throughout the year. Performances include plays, dance, choral groups and presentations by individual musicians and singers. Their music genres span a wide spectrum from rock to classical. Cowboy poetry is a craft practiced by few, but admired by many on the rare occasion of a public reading.

The Hand-Crafted Log Home Log Homes

100 Mile House
Capital of North America

The South Cariboo is well-known for its quality hand-crafted log buildings. It is no surprise then that 100 Mile House was recently designated the Hand-Crafted Log Home Capital of North America. Long before the official recognition, we in the South Cariboo have been celebrating this local trade. For over a century residents have used logs to build their structures. You will often see these historic buildings, long-forgotten, but still standing as tributes to pioneer character, will power and hard work. Today some of the biggest producers in North America operate here, where they can take advantage of direct access to high quality timber and a skilled workforce.

The first company to craft log buildings commercially started in the 1960s. As the natural beauty of log construction caught on, the industry has grown. Over the last forty years, more and more people from around the world are ordering their personally-designed and one-of-a-kind homes. Considerable progress has also occurred in the size and scale of building construction and in the detail and sophistication of construction techniques. From singular accents to complete architecture, unlimited options are available in structures ranging from luxury homes to recreational cabins and from extravagant resorts to elegant churches.

Thirteen log home building companies operate in the South Cariboo, producing up to four hundred buildings per year. They are sent throughout the world - to North America, Asia, Europe and even Australia. The specially-harvested logs are selected from Engelmann spruce, Western red cedar, Douglas fir, and Lodgepole pine tree species. For a unique look, the blue-stained denim pine can also be used. Logs are then inspected, graded and stamped, before moving into the hands of the log-home builders themselves. Hand-crafted means that the logs are not milled, allowing the natural character of the wood to emerge. Logs are hand-picked, hand-peeled, and hand-scribed, before being carefully positioned and manually fitted for snugness. Because the size of building that can be constructed has no limit, cranes are used to hoist the large dense logs. After precise construction, the buildings are dismantled, transported to their final destination and then re-assembled on site.

The log home industry is important to the local economy. Very labour intensive, these year round companies employ a significant number of South Cariboo residents, as well as adding immense value to the timber harvested from local forests. The structures themselves are beautiful, practical and enduring. Symbolic of our natural surroundings, with unique character and comfort, the custom made, hand-crafted log home is like no other. It is with pride then, that we at the South Cariboo Visitor Info Centre invite you to visit us in our own cozy log building in the heart of 100 Mile House. When you visit, be sure to take advantage of different log accommodations for your own "log home" experience.

Exploring our Forests

There are not many places left in this world where you can go and sense nothing of the human endeavour. Imagine hearing only the sounds of wind whispering to evergreens, the squeak of rubbing trunks - perhaps the drumming of a grouse or a woodpecker's morse code, followed by the crack of a branch letting you know that you are not alone. Yes, true wilderness can be found here in the South Cariboo. From moist cedar forests and wetland ecosystems to the arid plateau covered in pine and Douglas fir, from open grassland panoramas to high alpine vistas, we have an ample variety of landscapes to make every visit a memorable experience. As demonstrated by talented local artists, this area is perfect for wildlife and landscape photography or painting.

The forests you see now were originally managed by First Nations people, who practiced burning to clear underbrush and provide animal forage and berries. There is archaeological evidence of their habitation throughout the Cariboo region; and if you are very observant you may find a culturally-modified tree still standing as a testament to that era. The earliest tourists were white explorers and traders travelling through the BC interior. As the riches of this area were discovered, forests provided the foundation for development. Timbers were used to crib early pioneer trails - later evolving into main travel corridors for pioneers, gold seekers, and explorers alike. Since the last century early settlers in the area built small sawmills; some of which were still operating in the 1970s. Lumber was used to construct roadhouses and homesteads and provided extra income when surplus was sold off. You can still visit the remains of the Stevenson Mill (erected in 1899) on Bridge Creek in Centennial Park in 100 Mile House. Not only are South Cariboo forests great places to explore and appreciate, but they also provide an economic foundation for the area. Forestry plays a major part in the livelihoods of many residents. Wood, as a natural resource, supports two lumber mills, as well as numerous hand-crafted log home building companies. The value-added products of door and window manufacturing, modular home building, and timber frame construction are complemented by the unique and beautiful creations of local artisans and craftspeople. Many wood-based businesses welcome visitors, offering tours and displays of their wares.

Local guides can take you to more remote areas; teaching you about native flora and fauna. If you wish to explore on your own, there are many trails in the area, including the self-guided Dry Belt and Wet Belt Tours. Strolling the trails of the 100 Mile House District Demonstration Forest, you will see not only natural and historical points of interest, but also different examples of forestry practices then and now.
